

Dear Council massif,

In the three weeks since we last had the pleasure of each other's company, I spent the first two of those three weeks working on four big assignments, so Exec work was kept to a minimum.

In the one week since then, I've been busy catching up on emails after a busy few weeks outside the office. The main thing for me has been casework; things like tying up loose ends with the book fair (all sorted now), for which I have also submitted a General Meeting motion in an attempt to make them permanent. I've also been dealing with a number of other things; stuff from trying to get a water cooler in the George Kenyon building to getting the message out about the Dean's new Teaching Awards.

I've also been in various meetings; from a Staff-Student Liaison Committee meeting in Manchester Business School to a meeting with the Vice-Chancellor. I have further meetings lined up in the coming days, including one with UMSU's new Membership Services Director, and also a Humanities Teaching and Learning Committee meeting. More meetings are also planned, but because the deadline for submitting this report is within the next few minutes I'm unable to go through my calendar as I usually do and list them for your benefit. If you'd like to know, please don't hesitate to drop me an email at humanities@umsu.manchester.ac.uk, or otherwise do swing my office.

As always, much love.

Mo Saqib
